Why choose ISN Psychology?

ISN Psychology's focus is psychological education. Our Master of Psychology (Clinical) is APAC accredited without conditions. A program is granted accreditation without conditions when it meets all the Accreditation Standards. Our continuous and consistent focus as a psychology-only institution allows us to provide you with the best resources available on your education journey. At a glance, this includes providing you access to:

- Academic supervisors and lecturers with expert knowledge in psychology, many of which are practicing psychologists with endorsements
- A curriculum tailored around clinical research that has direct relevance to building the skills you need in a psychology-focused career
- Utilising the latest technologies and its extensive facilities to provide a rich learning experience with lifestyle flexibility

ISN also directly supports student placement opportunities by offering psychological services through the ISN Clinic. With branches in Ivanhoe, Bundoora, and most recently Kew, ISN Clinic provides an exciting bridge between psychology education and clinical practice for students who meet the entry requirement to our postgraduate studies.

DETAILS

Master of Psychology (Clinical)

The Master of Psychology (Clinical) prepares students for professional practice and to enter into a registrar program towards endorsement as a clinical psychologist. The program is accredited by APAC without conditions.

Students who graduate from this course will be eligible for general registration as a psychologist through ahpra and the Psychology Board of Australia upon which they can commence a registrar program towards endorsement as a clinical psychologist.

The course consists of course work, practical placement, and research components. Course work in the first year of the program will provide students with the ground work and practice skills needed to commence their first placement typically at our affiliated ISN Clinic. The second year of the program has a strong focus on integration of clinical skills through additional placements and advanced course units. Students will complete a research systematic review as part of the program in a clinically significant area of research.

Career Prospects and Pathways

While skill based and practical training through placements require face to face engagements, both 'live online' and 'face to face' onsite teaching options will be available with respect to course units at ISN Psychology – utilising the latest technologies and its extensive facilities to provide a rich learning experience with lifestyle flexibility.

Master of Psychology (Clinical) students gain their skills and develop competencies in a number of settings through hospitals, specialist services, government, not-for-profit organisations, school settings or private practice.

Eligibility and Entry Requirements

- The minimum requirement for entry to the APAC accredited Master of Psychology (Clinical) course is based on academic achievement in an APAC accredited four-year sequence of study in psychology with greatest weighting given to the 4th year (Honours or Graduate Diploma). Students must have completed an APAC accredited 4th year of study and be eligible to register as a provisional psychologist with the Psychology Board of Australia (PsyBA) to be considered for entry.
- Entry into the Master of Psychology (Clinical) course is competitive and requires consideration of academic results, relevant experience and the outcome of interviews/assessments.
- Additionally, candidates must meet minimum English language proficiency standards for entry to the Master of Psychology (Clinical) course.
- Students must also be able to abide by the inherent requirements stipulated by ISN Psychology.
- Applicants who can demonstrate that they are currently registered as a psychologist and complying with the CPD requirements of the Registration Board will be exempted from the aforementioned entry requirements and considered for entry into the postgraduate course based on experience in the field.
- Further information regarding entry requirements for the Master of Psychology (Clinical) can be found in the ISN Policies and Procedures available by visiting our website.
- Domestic students with Australian citizenship or Permanent Residency rights (or New Zealand Citizenship) can apply. ISN cannot currently accept applications for international students.
- Students who completed their undergraduate studies overseas but meet the domestic student criteria can apply for this course. ISN requires evidence of course equivalence in the form of an APS assessment document for all international qualifications.
